The getopt () function parses the command-line arguments. Its arguments argc and argv are the argument count and array as passed to the main () function on program invocation. An element of argv that starts with '-' (and is not exactly "-" or "--") is an option element.

getopt(3) - Linux manual page - Michael Kerrisk

To accept GNU-style long options as well as single-character options, use getopt_long instead of getopt. This function is declared in getopt.h, not unistd.h. You should make every program accept long options if it uses any options, for this takes little extra work and helps beginners remember how to use the program. Data Type: struct option

Getopt Long Options (The GNU C Library)

The getopt_long () function works like getopt () except that it also accepts long options, started with two dashes. (If the program accepts only long options, then optstring should be specified as an empty string (""), not NULL.) Long option names may be abbreviated if the abbreviation is unique or is an exact match for some defined option.

getopt_long(3) - OpenBSD manual pages

The Getopt::Long module implements an extended getopt function called GetOptions(). This function adheres to the POSIX syntax for command line options, with GNU extensions. In general, this means that options have long names instead of single letters, and are introduced with a double dash "--". Support for bundling of command line options, as was the case with the more traditional single ...

Getopt::Long - perldoc.perl.org

The getopt and getopt_long functions automate some of the chore involved in parsing typical unix command line options.

Getopt (The GNU C Library)

Getopt::Long will, however, allow the options and arguments to be mixed and 'filter out' all the options before passing the rest of the arguments to the program. To stop Getopt::Long from processing further arguments, insert a double dash --on the command line:--size 24 -- --all . In this example, --all will not be treated as an option, but passed to the program unharmed, in @ARGV. Options ...
