The Platinum Age of Television eBook by David Bianculli ...

In the United States, the current Golden Age of Television, or Peak TV, has been a period widely regarded as being marked by a large number of "high quality", internationally acclaimed television programs. Named in reference to the original Golden Age of Television in the 1950s, the period has also been referred to as the "New", "Second" or "Third Golden Age of Television". The various names reflect disagreement over whether shows of the 1980s and 1990s belong to a since-concluded golden era or

In the 2000s, television entered the 'Platinum Age', as storytellers had license to take the medium to new heights. On cable, it was the decade of the antihero, with The Sopranos centred on a sympathetic mob boss, The Shield casting a dirty cop as the lead, and Breaking Bad turning Mr Chips into Scarface. Networks responded by taking creative risks, and audiences rewarded them by flocking to new shows like 24, Lost, Desperate Housewives, Glee, and Grey's Anatomy.
