Panel data, also known as longitudinal data or cross-sectional time series data in some special cases, is data that is derived from a (usually small) number of observations over time on a (usually large) number of cross-sectional units like individuals, households, firms, or governments. In the disciplines of econometrics and statistics, panel data refers to multi-dimensional data that generally involves measurements over some period of time.

What Is Panel Data

in Economic Research?

In statistics and econometrics, panel data and longitudinal data are both multi-dimensional data involving measurements over time. Panel data is a subset of longitudinal data where observations are for the same subjects each time. Time series and cross-sectional data can be thought of as special cases of panel data that are in one dimension only (one panel member or individual for the former, one time point for the latter). A study that uses panel data is called a longitudinal study or panel study.

Panel data - Wikipedia

Panel data usually contain more degrees of freedom and more sample variability than cross-sectional data which may be viewed as a panel with $T = 1$, or time series data which is a panel with $N = 1$, hence improving the efficiency of econometric estimates (e.g. Hsiao et al., 1995). 4C. Hsiao
