Real Application Clusters - Oracle FAQ

Oracle Real Application Clusters (Oracle RAC) is a cluster database with a shared cache architecture that overcomes the limitations of traditional shared-nothing and shared-disk approaches to provide highly scalable and available database solutions for business applications.

Real Application Clusters and Global Data Services

The advantage of Oracle RAC is that resources on both nodes are used by the database, and each node uses its own memory and CPU. Information is shared between nodes through the interconnect—the virtual private network. Real Application Clusters provide high availability because of the failover of connections in the event of a hardware failure or server connection failure.
