Abstract: The purpose of this paper is to describe the most relevant features of qualitative research in order to show how, from the Epistemology of the Known Subject perspective I propose, it is necessary to review first the ontological and then the epistemological grounds of this type of inquiry. I begin by following the path that leads from the Epistemology of the Knowing Subject to the Epistemology of the Known Subject, proposed as a new and non exclusive way of knowing.

Ontological and Epistemological Foundations of Qualitative ...

Ontology considers the nature of the acclaimed meanings/realities in relation to the existence of objective reality (Kavanagh et al., 1994); while Epistemology looks at how knowledge is construed and what is accepted as valid evidence in qualitative research; which is seen as being largely dependent on the study design and the quality of collected information (Braun and Clarke, 2013).

Epistemology and Ontology in Qualitative Data Research

Ontology and epistemology are two different ways of viewing a research philosophy. Ontology in business research can be defined as “the science or study of being” [1] and it deals with the nature of reality. Ontology is a system of belief that reflects an interpretation by an individual about what constitutes a fact.

Ontology - Research-Methodology

In essence, the ontological and epistemological positions represent the basis of the work of political scientists. On the surface, these positions are often not apparent but they can be demonstrated by the process of methodology. Therefore, it is, to a large degree, necessary to apprehend the connection between the foundations of research.
