A course is a course, of course, except when it is a subject. At MIT course numbers and abbreviations refer to courses of study leading to specific academic degrees and, by extension, to the departments or programs offering those degrees. For example, Course 6 refers to the Department of Electrical Engineering and Computer Science.

Mechanical Engineering (Course 2) < MIT

Roughly 70 percent of undergraduates declare an engineering discipline as their major. But keep in mind: MIT is intellectually diverse — offering academic programs in the arts, sciences, and humanities. So, don't be surprised if you take a class on the history of making books and end up building your own Gutenberg press.

The master's degree generally requires a minimum of one academic year of study, while the engineer's degree requires two years. Admission to MIT for the master's degree does not necessarily imply an automatic commitment by MIT beyond that level of study. In the School of Engineering, students may be awarded the engineer's degree.
