Star Trek Comics Checklist

The fifth and alas final volume of Star Trek - The Key Collection from Checker brings adventures of the Enterprise crew from 1975 to 1977. The series from Gold Key goes through some profound changes during this time with a new artistic approach being brought to the series. To this time the Alberto Giolitti studio had been handling the artwork as they had done for any number of Gold Key projects, but a new artist Al McWilliams will become the mainstay of the series.

Rip Jagger's Dojo: Star Trek - The Key Collection Volume Five!

The stories in the fourth of the Checker Star Trek - The Key Collection series gathers together stories published over the course of a year in 1974 and 1975. The artwork is again credited to the Alberto Giolitti studio, but more that usual the evidence of multiple hands is in evidence. George Wilson again is the cover artist, though truth old these are among his most lackluster efforts.

Rip Jagger's Dojo: Star Trek - The Key Collection Volume Four!

With the third volume in the Checker Star Trek - The Key Collection run, the characters and the ship and such have largely been made consistent with the now defunct TV show. It will begin its surge to prominence as the reruns will bring it to more and more of its audience, an audience which will grow to love the adventures and will crave more.
