The story goes something like this: Eugen Herrigel, a German teaching and living in Japan, set out to understand the meaning of Zen. Realizing it cannot be studied but only experienced, he decided to learn about it through the practice of one of the arts "touched" by Zen, Kyudo (Japanese archery).

Quotes From Zen in the Art of Archery | Independent Society

This is a beautiful older book, written in the 1950's about a scholar's experience learning archery from a Zen master. It is a beautifully written book, and documents the scholar's growing understanding of a philosophy that can not be taught in words, but only through experience. I am a beginning archer, and I found the book very beautiful.
