The Germans were less talented, less successful, and less able to cope with modernity than the Jews. And their envy gradually mutated into a lethal resentment that could be exploited by the Nazis, who first excluded, then expropriated, and finally exterminated the Jews.

It Was More Than Envy - DANIEL JOHNSON, Commentary Magazine

Hitler did not invent the hatred of Jews. Jews in Europe had been victims of discrimination and persecution since the Middle Ages, often for religious reasons. Christians saw the Jewish faith as an aberration that had to be quashed. Jews were sometimes forced to convert or they were not allowed to practise certain professions.

Why did Hitler hate the Jews? | Anne Frank House

Why The Germans Jews Envy This book posits that the roots of German anti-Semitism prior to 1933 rested on envy of the Jews' relatively advanced economic and professional status. This is a plausible explanation but flies in the face of most of the vast literature on this subject, and the author makes no attempt to refute what other analyses present.
