Multimedia Instruction. Multimedia instruction (or a multimedia learning environment) involves presenting words and pictures that are intended to promote learning. In short, multimedia instruction refers to design in multimedia presentations in ways that help people build mental representations. The instructional design principles described in parts 2 and 3 of this handbook suggest ways of creating multimedia presentations intended to promote multimedia learning.

Preface - The Cambridge Handbook of Multimedia Learning

Multimedia learning is a cognitive theory of learning which has been popularized by the work of Richard E. Mayer and others. Multimedia learning happens when we build mental representations from words and pictures. The theory has largely been defined by Mayer's cognitive theory of multimedia learning.

The Cognitive Theory of Multimedia Learning

1 Definition. "One of the most exciting forms of pictorial presentation is animation. Animation refers to a simulated motion picture depicting movement of drawn (or simulated) objects. The main features of this definition are as follows: (1) picture - an animation is a kind of pictorial representation; (2) motion - an animation depicts apparent movement; and (3) simulated - an animation consists of objects that are artificially created through drawing or
