The Ragged-Trousered Philanthropists (1914) is a semi-autobiographical novel by the Irish house painter and sign writer Robert Noonan, who wrote the book in his spare time under the pen name Robert Tressell. Published after Tressell's death from tuberculosis in the Liverpool Royal Infirmary in 1911, the novel follows a house painter's efforts to find work in the fictional English town of Mugsborough (based on the coastal town of Hastings) to stave off the workhouse for himself, his wife and ...

Then, "The Ragged Trousered Philanthropists" was smuggled round as if it was a banned book but one you must read. Unfortunately it was a very slim volume from which all the political comment had been removed. It was still interesting to someone 'in the trade'. Many years later, and also ago, I read the unexpurgated version.

Robert TRESSSELL (1870 - 1911) Clearly frustrated at the refusal of his contemporaries to recognise the iniquity of society, Tressell's cast of hypocritical Christians, exploitative capitalists and corrupt councillors provide a backdrop for his main target — the workers who think that a better life is "not for the likes of them".

LibriVox

The poor working people who tolerate capitalism are the ragged trousered philanthropists. Perhaps Tressell's only compensation is the possibility that, as Marx suggested, the system will collapse of its own accord because of internal contradictions. In the meantime we have to keep plugging away to change things.
