The Heritage Softail Classic is the kind of bike most non-riders think of when they hear 'Harley'—oodles of chrome, saddlebags, riveted leather and massive fenders. At over 700 pounds wet, it's designed for long distance touring—and it isn't the sort of machine you expect to find in a teeming metropolis in tropical Southeast Asia.

The Heritage Springer's fancy new front end is damn heavy, feeling like all the weight of the bike is resting on that front wheel. Simple parking lot maneuvers are minor tests of strength. Stopping and starting two-up in the city are not to be taken lightly either. You have to stay alert and establish solid footing with each and every stop.
