The Faraway Nearby. In this exquisitely written new book by the author of A Paradise Built in Hell, Rebecca Solnit explores the ways we make our lives out of stories, and how we are connected by empathy, by narrative, by imagination. In the course of unpacking some of her own stories—of her mother and her decline from memory loss, of a trip to Iceland, of an illness—Solnit revisits fairytales and entertains other stories: about arctic explorers, Che Guevara among the leper colonies, and ...

The Faraway Nearby | Rebecca Solnit

A wide-ranging meditation on illness, empathy, and art, The Faraway Nearby muses about what it means to transform a barren relationship and find authentic connection. At the core of the memoir is Solnit's fraught bond with her mother; in lyrical prose, the author recollects the many battles the two waged against each other, and considers how their relationship changed in the wake of her mother's diagnosis with Alzheimer's.

The Faraway Nearby by Rebecca Solnit - Goodreads

La 4e de couverture indique : "Gifts come in many guises. One summer, Rebecca Solnit was bequeathed three boxes of ripening apricots, which lay, mountainous, on her bedroom floor - a windfall, a riddle, an emergency to be dealt with. The fruit came from a neglected tree that her mother, gradually succumbing to memory loss, could no longer tend to.

The Faraway Nearby by Rebecca Solnit - review | Books ...

Blending creative nonfiction, prose poetry, travel writing, and literary analyses, American author Rebecca Solnit's The Faraway Nearby (2013) is a lyrical dreamscape of ideas centering on the human need to create; specifically, how storytelling and empathy inform, shape, and enrich the human experience. The catalyst for all of these musings is Solnit's mother's diagnosis of Alzheimer's, which inspires the author to consider the creative imagination, its beauties, and its limits.

'The Faraway Nearby,' by Rebecca Solnit - The New York Times

Often, too often, stories saddle us, ride us, whip us onward, tell us what to do, and we do it without questioning. The task of learning to be free requires learning to hear them, to question them, to pause and hear silence, to name them, and then become a story-teller." — Rebecca Solnit, The Faraway Nearby. 36 likes.
