Book Description. Winner of the 2015 Sugiyama Meiko Award (Publication Award) of the Behaviormetric Society of Japan. Developed by the authors, generalized structured component analysis is an alternative to two longstanding approaches to structural equation modeling: covariance structure analysis and partial least squares path modeling. Generalized structured component analysis allows researchers to evaluate the adequacy of a model as a whole, compare a model to alternative specifications ...

What is Generalized Structured Component Analysis (GSCA) GSCA is a component based structural equation model method and can be used as PLS Path Modeling. This method introduced by Hwang and Takane (2011), allows to optimize a global function using an algorithm called Alternating Least Square algorithm (ALS). GSCA lies in the tradition of component analysis. It substitutes components for factors as in PLS.

Generalized Structured Component Analysis (GSCA) was introduced by Hwang & Takane (2004). The method has some superficial similarities to structural equation modelling (SEM), which typically follows a covariance-based approach and requires substantial sample size to ensure adequate model fit.

Generalized Structured Component Analysis - ERIC

Generalized structured component analysis (GSCA) is a component-based approach to structural equation modeling (SEM), where latent variables are approximated by weighted composites of indicators. It has no formal mechanism to incorporate errors in indicators, which in turn renders components prone to the errors as well.

Abstract We propose an alternative method to partial least
