Flashcards | Quizlet

The human circulatory system circulates blood through two loops (double circulation) – One for oxygenated blood, another for deoxygenated blood. The human heart consists of four chambers – two ventricles and two auricles. The human circulatory system possesses a body-wide network of blood vessels. These comprise arteries, veins, and capillaries.

Circulatory system, as the name itself, implies circulates food, water, and air throughout the body. The most important means of transport in the circulatory system is the blood. Blood is a fluid connective tissue present in our body which circulates food, water, and air to different parts of the body. Blood travels through blood vessels.
